The Fenians in Ireland are very active of late in certain operations annoying and costly to the govern-ment. The chief of these is the illicit distillation of whisky, which is increasing with alarming rapidity. During the past year there have been over 3,000 cases brought under the notice of the police; and if we estimate one case in ten detected, there must be 30,000 stills in operation-enough to supply potheen for a formidable army When the American branch of tho society lands in Ireland they may look out for a warm welcome and

AN INCIDENT .- One of the most cleasing incidents connected with the Fourth of July celebration, was the entwining of the American and Mexican flagad This was done by a Mexican on Second street, near the Globe Hotel, and so tastefully was the whole affair arranged, that the procession: stopped in front of the Medican's house and gave him three cheeren It is more than probable that in . pursuance of the Munroe Doctrine the two flags will soon be blended on the field of battle, and that under the two flags Americans and Mexicans will unite for the purpose of driving out the perfidious Gaul who seeks to enslave the neighboring Republic .- Dalles Mountaineer.

H We fear it will be seen that wisdom distated a different course, for there are duties to the living, as well as to the dend and, whenever the necessity is imperative they should be beld paramount. It has been seen that our Saintly friends were troubled with no euch respect for the sanctity of death as others entertained -- they are very demonstrative creatures, of friendly feel ing. fillal affection, loyal sentiment, and all that but they always have a rigilant, eye to battoon; which never slumbers. hut stares withel, and lobking steadily forward takes careful account of the tuture. Their actions are guided by a central will, which operates, like a law of nature, through every circumstance of joy or sorrow; every condition of ordinary action, whether of slow transition or sudden change. Hence it is, that they, who seek to counteract the movements, or thwart the far-reaching plans thus inasgurated, should be equally vigilant and always ready to meet emergencies as they arise.

There is a potition now in Washington we presume signed very extensively by Mormons, as we are informed, and supported by a few Gentile names, asking that Col. O. H. them, respinsively tarively Murders near Fort Bridger. FORT BRIDGER, U. T.

July 17th, 1865. Dear Vedelly Another is added to the catalogue of foul murders that have come under our notice in this vicinity the present summer. Yesterday it was reported to me that the bodies of two men, chained together, were lying on a than the production of the precious metsand-bar in Black s Fork a few miles below Millersville, the first mail station east of this place.

A Mexican called "Joe" who was residing near the station, seeing a dark body, partly concealed by the water, which he supposed to be a dead horse, and wishing to get the mane and tail for making lariattes, went into the water and approached the object when, to his borror, be discovered the mutilated bodies of two men chained together. Being much frightened be immediately hastened to report the circumstance.
This morning I sent R. H. Hamilton and L. B. Scott to investigate the nutter. They have just returned and report the statement of the Mexican correct. They, in company with a number of others camping along the road, dragged the bodies ashore and examined them as minutely as their condition would admit. They were fastened together with ropes and then with a log-chain, the head of he one being in the direction of the feet of the other. They had apparrently been in the water some four or five days as the bair had partly slipped from their heads. The faces were much swollen, and the sculls borridly mangled as if done with a club or axe.

One of the men was about five feet seven Inches high, weighed some one bundred and tifty pounds, had light hair, sandy whiskers and mustache; was dresstweed sack under coat, purple mixed cassimere pants, white ribbed drawers, striped woollen shirt, heavy brogan bools, much worn; nothing was found in bis pockets except an india rubber pocket comb, two red silk handkorchiefs and a printed mail road directory. five years at that rate we shall produce more gold and silver than is now used to carry on the commerce of rhe world. supply should render gold too cheap. What then may be the effect of the great increase of the annual product of gold and silver which is soon to take place? Is it needed either as a circulating medium or for manufacturing, or is it likely to cheapen the intrinsic value of those metals? We believe it is generally conceded that the annual product, though so much greater than formerly, is still inadequate for the commerce of the civilized world. By means of railroads, telegraphs, and steam navigation that commerce has been extended more rapidly als. Late years especially the product has not materially increased, while the demand for gold has increased tremenduously, so that there is now a dearth for that article. The restoration of peace will give a new impetus to both internal and external commerce, and thereby increase the demand for gold. There is, therefore, no reason to fear a depreciation of the value of gold and silver by the increased production anticipated. We might take an economical view of the subject of the production of gold and silver, and say that they cannot depreciate in value materially, because an equivalent in labor has to be given in exchange for it. The intrinsic value of these metals will alwas be maintained by the labor required to produce them. When they lose their value by excess of production, they will cease to be produced in such quantity, and thus their present velue will be maintained forever. An equilibrium will be kept up. A nation having within its territory both the tanary and the treasury of the world, cannot be denied the position she is enblack satinett over coat, light titled to as the most wealthy, independent and powerful nation of the earth.

GRANT .- All will be sorry, and none surprised, that General Grant returned to Washington after his triumphal march to Chicago, with impaired health. The American people-just like all other people, we suppose-never know or seem to care how much the object of their curiosity or admiration is worn or fatigued with their attentions and demands. Washington, the boat on which he as cended the Ohio river stopped at Evansville, Indiana, and when the crowd discovered him, they rushed for him like a band of stampeded buffalo, and jammed the old hero with such force up against a pile of pork barrels as to smash two of his ribs! When he got to Cincinnati, he was very budly used up; but cold and freezing as it was, he was hustled out of the boat into a carriage and marched around the city half dead with pain and cold. There is little doubt that these public demonstrations caused his death. He died a martyr to merciless curiosity and exacting admiration. We hope Grant won't allow himself to be killed in this way. We want him for the next war, as well as for a living example to long. winded patriots. Speaking of his reticence, it seems to be communicative. His sub-commanders emulate him, and confine their speeches to offering " I worthy commendation.

SANTA ANNA. - This distinguished man is living his life of exile in the Island of St. Thomas. When the French invaded Mexico, Gen. Bazine took him prisoner and politely putting a steam vessel at his service, told him graciously to depart, whither he pleased, but never to return to Mexico. It was like old Richelien's admonition to one of the conspirato s against his life, "Quit France, dear Baradas." Santa Anna is rich and lavish of his means, and why he remains in a place of so few attractions as St. Thomas, it is difficult to tell. It is said by his enemies that he keeps a harem, but this is not hardly possible. He was lately visited by the Captain of the American steamer "Cotopaxi" who describes him as walking with great ease on his cork leg, and being very crect and vigorous. He is sixty-five years old, but has lost little of his vigor and youthful fire. He is a great friend of our Government-or so expresses himself-and has said that he boped that the Yankees will drive Maximillian out of Mexico.

THE Reese River Reveille says Vice President Foster is in Colorado attempt ing to pacify the Indians by presents after the manner of catching. birds by putting salt on their tails. As the redskins had stolen the stock of his escort, it may retard the success of the quixotic mission. He has already found near six hundred "friendly Indians," but they are under the sod pear Fort Lyon; and more of the same sort. The Reveille thinks the Hon. gentleman's sympathy bet that the country bee been dirided into four grand divisions, and the commanders assigned, is wholly unfounded. No such division or assign ment has been made, and the question of making it has not been reached. At present the authorities are wholly occupied with the work of disorganizing the army, a work hardly less enerous than that of organizing it.

IT seems after all, that the new Constitution for Missouri has been accepted by the people. The vote is close, but the papers which favor it all claim this result, and the opposition press, as far as we know, concede to it. The only question now is, as to the majority it has received. The St. Louis Democrat sums this up as follows: For the Constitution, 20,040; against the Constitution, 16,693; majority for the Constitution, 3,317.

THE North Idaho Review calls the Oregon Steam Navigation Company fresh water sharks," and says that the people of Oregon and Idaho should be naturally benefited if all the boats the company own would sink in one night
